Ancient Macedonia

Ancient Macedonia

Programme Summary

The Summer School on Ancient Macedonia focuses on the history, the culture and the archaeology of ancient Macedonia. It aims at presenting an overall image of the region of Macedonia and the Macedonians, from the early stages of history until the late Hellenistic period. It is the first Summer School with that topic to be ever organized and is going to be held at the International Hellenic University, in Thessaloniki.

The aim of this 2-week intensive school is to make the participants – both students and scholars – more acquainted with aspects of the history, the archaeology and life in ancient Macedonia by providing up-to-date knowledge presented and discussed by the experts of the relevant fields, and especially new results of the archaeological research at the various Macedonian sites.

The Summer School will take place in the heart of Macedonia, very close to the sites presented, and will offer the option of a one-week Archaeological Field Practice for those who would like to participate in an excavation. It will also focus on various cultural aspects as well as the Macedonian dialect.
